2. How to Play Football Over/Under Betting

As a popular form of betting, football Over/Under betting is always an attractive choice due to its simplicity, ease of play, and likelihood of winning.

Before each match, bookmakers will provide an expected goal rate. Accordingly, players only need to choose whether the total number of goals will be lower or higher than the rate set by the bookmaker to place their bet. Bet on "Over" if you think the predicted goals will be higher, and bet on "Under" if you think the predicted goals will be lower. Players will predict and bet on the total number of goals in the match.

Specific example:

- If the match ends with a score of 1-3, the total number of goals will be 4.
- If the match ends 1-0, the total number of goals will be 1.

Choose "Over" if you think the match will have many goals. Conversely, choose "Under" if you think the match will have few goals. If the total number of goals in the match equals the number predicted by the bookmaker, you will receive your bet back.

When betting on a football app, only the official playing time and stoppage time are counted.

However, results from penalty shootouts or extra time do not count.

Over/Under betting only requires players to focus on the total number of goals without caring about which team wins or loses. This creates an exciting, fresh game that attracts a large number of players.
